

Community Health Centers in Connecticut

Community health centers have been the critical source of health care for the poor, underserved, vulnerable populations at risk for poor health status in many communities throughout the state for decades. A wide range of high quality preventive and primary care services are offered at community health centers. The sites listed below are the headquarter locations. Many health centers also operate additional sites in other locations. See the Web links below for more information. (Source: Connecticut Department of Public Health. www.dph.state.ct.us)
